To Whom It May Concern,

I'm delighted to give a personal recommendation for Mikhail for an engineering role. During his internship under my supervision, he consistently impressed me with his technical skills and professionalism.

Mikhail is an extremely intelligent individual with a remarkable capacity to research and learn new concepts quickly. His strong foundation in electrical and electronic engineering was evident throughout his work, and he complemented this with excellent programming and coding skills. These abilities allowed him to tackle complex challenges with confidence and precision.

He also produced outstanding mechanical and electrical designs that were both creative and detailed. His work wasn't just accurate—it was innovative, showing a deep understanding of engineering principles.

On top of his technical strengths, Mikhail was a pleasure to work with. He's approachable, calm under pressure, and a great team player. His positive attitude and reliability made him an invaluable part of our team.

I'm confident Mikhail will excel in any engineering position. He brings technical expertise, a strong work ethic, and great interpersonal skills—qualities that make him an asset to any organization. If you'd like to discuss his work further, please feel free to reach out.

Best regards,
Warren Cresswell
